Ross A. Dannenberg is elected to a leadership position in the International Game Developers Association

November 10, 2009

Mr. Dannenberg is elected to the Steering Committee of the Intellectual Property Rights Committee of the International Game Developers Association. The Intellectual Property Rights Committee's mission is to support the understanding and proper use and protection of intellectual property in game development.

The International Game Developers Association is the largest non-profit membership organization serving individuals that create video games. The IGDA is committed to advancing the careers and enhancing the lives of game developers by connecting members with their peers, promoting professional development, and advocating on issues that affect the developer community. For more information on the IGDA, please visit http://www.igda.org/.

.

Posted: November 10, 2009