Christopher J. Renk comments on DVD-ripping software in TechNewsWorld.

September 8, 2008

The article discusses the licensing limitations that make RealDVD legal. Renk explains that this software does not give you the right to rip a movie onto a DVD itself and the rights you get are limited by encryption software. Renk also states that this software will probably not stop people from copying DVDs illegally but will offer a quick and easy legal method.

Please click here to view article.

Posted: September 8, 2008