Justin Philpott to Speak to Northwestern's Intellectual Property Law Society

September 24, 2020

Banner Witcoff attorney Justin Philpott will speak on a Sept. 24 panel hosted by the Intellectual Property Law Society (IPLS) at Northwestern Pritzker School of Law.

Justin and his fellow panelists will discuss the differences between transactional and litigation work, and share their personal experiences working in IP law.

IPLS is a student organization dedicated to increasing awareness and involvement in patent, copyright and trademark law. IPLS strives to engage students with presentations, panels, and other educational events, while also increasing student involvement in the legal community through networking events and an attorney/student mentorship program.