Kirk Sigmon Explores the Implications of a Video Game Class Action on IP Rights for Law360

In an article published for Law360, Kirk Sigmon dives into a recent class action by video game collectors, and what that could mean for IP Rights.

In the article, Kirk outline how the lawsuit, which involves a $1 million Super Mario Brothers game and the TV show “Pawn Stars,” holds a variety of lessons for intellectual property rights holders.

To read the full article, please click here.

Posted: August 17, 2022