

Patent Obviousness in the Wake of KSR International Co. v. Teleflex Inc.

The U.S. Supreme Court's 2007 KSR International Co. v. Teleflex Inc. brought about a significant change in patent law, specifically in the area of determining whether or not inventions are non-obvious, thus patentable. This book presents a review of how this issue, since that landmark decision, has been analyzed, applied, and considered by the International Trade Commission and the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, the district courts of the various regional circuits, and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. This source is equally helpful to the prosecutor, litigator, student, and the academic. As cases and decisions are analyzed from each jurisdiction, one can quickly identify relevant decisions and trends within particular jurisdictions to prepare accordingly.

Content Includes:

- Administrative Agencies: ITC and USPTO
- First through Eleventh Circuit
- Federal Circuit
- Federal Circuit Decisions Involving Litigation over Abbreviate new Drug Applications
- Index of Decisions

Product Code: 5370189; Price $129.95 Regular; $110.95 ABA Member; $103.95 ABA-IPL Member

About the Editors

Allen F. Gardner is a member at Potter Minton in Tyler, Texas. Mr. Gardner's practice focuses primarily on civil litigation, working for both plaintiffs and defendants. He has represented clients in a wide variety of areas, including patent and intellectual property litigation, commercial litigation, fair credit reporting litigation, consumer protection litigation, and appellate litigation.

Paul M. Rivard has extensive experience in counseling in intellectual property matters and in preparing and prosecuting patent applications in the chemical and pharmaceutical arts. His practice focuses on developing and managing worldwide patent portfolios with a view toward meeting his clients' business objectives. Representative technologies include plastics and polymer chemistry, molding and coating technologies, chemical manufacturing, packaging materials, pharmaceuticals, ceramics, and agricultural sciences. Mr. Rivard practices in the Washington, DC office of Banner & Witcoff, Ltd.

To order a copy, visit the ABA Bookstore at www.ababooks.org or call us at 1.800.285.2221