Marc's practice focuses on intellectual property litigation. He has successfully tried numerous patent, trademark and copyright cases in courts around the country, and handled many proceedings at the PTAB and TTAB. Marc has also assisted clients with resolving disputes through various forms of alternative dispute resolution.

Marc was one of 30 patent litigation attorneys recognized nationally in Expert Guides' 2018 edition of Best of the Best USA. He has been featured in Illinois Super Lawyers every year from 2007-2023, and as a "Notable Practitioner" in the Intellectual Property – Illinois section of Chambers and Partners USA in the 2018-2022 guides. Marc has been recognized by Managing Intellectual Property as an "IP Star" since 2013, most recently in the 2022 edition, with clients commending him for being "a very polished and seasoned IP practitioner" whose "work product is always excellent." He was also recognized in Expert Guides' "World's Leading Patent Law Practitioners" and the National Law Journal's "Top Rated Lawyers in the Midwest" in 2017. He is AV Peer Review Rated by the LexisNexis Martindale-Hubbell Ratings, and was named to the 2017 Legal Leaders: Fall Litigation edition of "Top Rated Lawyers."

Marc frequently speaks and writes about intellectual property litigation. He is an adjunct professor at Northwestern Law School in Chicago and previously taught at Georgetown University Law School in Washington, D.C., where he has focused on courses in intellectual property litigation. Marc is also a visiting professor at the University of Illinois Law School where he has co-taught a course on the fundamentals of legal practice and client service. Marc is a contributing author to the book, "Intellectual Property Law & Interactive Media," published by Peter Lang Publishing Inc. Marc has been a contributing editor to the Federal Circuit Bar Journal. He has also written a regular column on intellectual property issues affecting the toy industry for Playthings magazine. Marc is a past National Chair of the Saul Lefkowitz Moot Court Competition, put on by the International Trademark Association. He also has participated as a facilitator for the Illinois Supreme Court Committee on Professionalism law school program. He is admitted to practice in numerous Federal Courts and the Patent and Trademark Office.

Marc has been featured in magazines, including a Chicago Daily Law Bulletin article when he became managing partner of the firm at age 34.

He has been involved in the enforcement and defense of intellectual property rights for software, commercial manufacturing, consumer products, toy, textile and paper, medical products, transportation and other technologies.
