Robert Katz Quoted in IAM Article on Remote Working in IP Practices

Robert Katz is quoted in an IAM article on how remote working has affected top IP practices. The article asked seven industry leaders about their own management styles, and how they evolved over their careers and how they have been changed by 18 months of remote working.

Robert told the article “Like many things in our business, it is important to stay nimble so as to adapt to changing circumstances and covid-19 was a major reminder of this. For most clients, we have replaced in-person meetings and telephone calls with regularly scheduled video conferences. In these we can go over the status of cases, portfolio management and strategy, to ensure that we are in sync and continuing to provide cutting-edge advice.”
