The USPTO’s new examiner count system goes into effect

February 19, 2010

A new formula has been implemented for crediting patent examiners with “counts” for certain actions. These significant changes to the examiner “count system” were announced by the United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) on September 30, 2009, and took effect this week.
Please click here to read the USTPO’s press release on the new examiner count system.

Posted: February 19, 2010